

RISC Trauma Course

Strengthening rural trauma care through practical, team-based learning

With support from the Taupō Hospital & Health Society, five Taupō Hospital clinicians attended the RISC Trauma Course in Ashburton in June 2026.

The scenario-based programme provided realistic trauma experiences and reinforced the importance of teamwork, organisation and clear communication when caring for critically injured patients in a rural hospital setting.

“The knowledge, skills and confidence we gained will undoubtedly benefit both our professional development and the patients we care for.”

From left: Ven Vergara (RN), Anna Gray (SMO), Melissa Cleverley (RN), Coco Parkinson (RN) and Anny Yusuf (Registrar), Ashburton.

Skills that support safer care

The practical sessions strengthened confidence in early recognition, timely intervention and prompt transfer to definitive care.

Training in airway management, intubation, Code Crimson activation and medication use will directly support safer, more effective care for critically unwell trauma patients.

By investing in specialist training, the Society helps local clinical teams build capability and bring stronger trauma knowledge back to Taupō Hospital and the community it serves.